

The Position

Telehealth has changed how patients can access healthcare and its increased use means there are great opportunities for Geriatricians to change how they work too.

If you've been hoping to find an alternate working environment that better suits your lifestyle, this may be the complimentary service that can work well with your existing locum and permanent work arrangements, or this could be a transformative new job you decide to do full time!

Complete flexibility with days of the week (Monday to Friday) and times for work:

- ★ Pick up work before and after your existing shifts (seeing a few patients a day)
- ★ Block out a day a week or a session a week to see if this suits your schedule
- ★ Fit in with school hours, hobbies, and save yourself commuting and travel time!

It's no secret there are major medicine subspecialty shortages in regional and rural Australia.

This health service is a doctor-led health provider, and has an established network of patients on waiting lists across Australia - so the demand is there if you are ready to help and make a huge impact on regional and rural communities in a new way!

Patients that are appropriate for a telehealth consultation will be directed to you for consultations. This means you may see a portion of your typical range of cases. Procedural patients or highly complex cases will still require in-person assessment for quality care.

You will have access to a team of medical administration booking in appointments for you based on your scheduling preferences. Nurses may also be available in person with the patient particularly with vulnerable populations and more complex situations.

Next Steps with Prescript

At Prescript Recruitment, we follow a transparent, friendly process:

- The first stage is an informal conversation with Prescript for you to decide if you want to proceed – you will need to share your CV and we will talk about the position, the healthcare organisation, and the location. You can let us know if you want to bring your family and if you have any special requirements.
- The second stage is an informal application – we will arrange a phone call or a review of your skills to establish if this is going to be a good fit.
- The third stage – if you're happy then Prescript will send you a locum confirmation to say 'congratulations – all booked!'
- The fourth stage – Prescript will help manage all the paperwork and logistics. All you have to do is look forward to starting.
